

Business Update

Dear Valued Customer,

We wish to share an exciting update with you as we take the next step of our successful journey with our parent company, R-Biopharm AG. Progressing forward with our integration as “One Company”, we will be transitioning to operate under the R-Biopharm brand.

To begin this initiative, we plan to reintroduce the AusDiagnostics portfolio under the brand identity of R-Biopharm in the foreseeable future. While our brand name is set to change, our commitment to all existing and prospective customers, to consistently deliver high quality diagnostic products and services remains our primary focus. We will continue to manufacture locally in Australia and ensure security of the supply chain to our valued customers.

Rebranding to R-Biopharm allows us to align more closely with R-Biopharm AG’s global network providing our customers with access to enhanced resources, cutting-edge technologies, and a broader range of products. Together, as One Company, we aim to strengthen our offering, achieve greater innovation, and ensure optimal service to our customers. The alignment will support growth in areas of clinical, nutrition care, and food and feed diagnostic sectors, delivering advanced solutions for the Australian market.

As part of the rebranding initiative, we plan to launch a new website and begin to introduce new products under the R-Biopharm label.

Thank you for your continued trust and support. We look forward to serving you under our new identity and delivering innovative solutions that meet your needs.

Warm regards,

Scott Gilroy
